DEPRESSION IN FRANCE.

Our Consul Sucks a Reason For Our Guidance in France's Hard Times. Washington, Nov. 15. - United States Cousul Wiley at Bordeaux sends to the department of state an interesting report on the trade depression in France, in the course of which he seeks to find a reason for our guidance. He says that the statistics show that there still remains more money per capita in circulation in the republic of France than in although there has been a heavy falling off in imports and experts. An itemized portation during 1893 shows that there amounting to 252,000,000 fraces, the shrinkage being about equally divided between exports and imports. The country little over two years ago increased the duty on nearly all raw and manufactured articles discharged at her ports or brought across the frontier, and as goods, to employ an old custom, is paid for with goods, directly or indirectiy, France may explain the decrease of her exportations by the application of
